"The kids were living in terrible conditions. Both parents were alcoholics and their basement apartment was littered with garbage, including dirty diapers. The mother declared that she didn't want them, and the father, who said he did, stopped coming for visits. However, their foster mother loved them so much she adopted them, and now, years later, both children are happy and healthy. Seeing them now, laughing and playing, energizes me. Yes, I know why I'm doing this work."
