"At fourteen, I asked Children's Aid to remove my brother, sister, and myself from the abusive home of my father. In foster care, we all thrived. Encouraged by my foster parents and coaches, I became a wrestler and went on to win a Gold Medal for Canada at the 2002 Commonwealth Games. In December 2008, I was invited back to Nigeria, where I was born, for a great honour—my coronation as Chief Ikuku. Ikuku means 'air,' as in 'air gives life.'"
